TURK AND TEUTON

Ambassador Morgenthau's Story of Great War Plots BY HENRY !MORGENTHAU.

Mr. Hoffman Philip, the counseille f of the American embassy—now American minister to Colembin—had alread expressed a desire to accompany the hostages, so that he might ministed to their comfort. This manifestation of a fine humanitarian spirit was nothing new to Mr. Philip, Although not in good health, Mr. Philip, had returned to Constantinople after Turkey had entered the war, in order that he might assist me in the work of caring for the foreign residents. Through all that ordinal period he constantly displayed that sympathy for the unfortunate, the siek and the poor which is immate in his character. Though it was somewhate bregular for a representative of the embassy to engage in such a hazardous enterprise as this one, Mr. Philippiended so carnessly that finally I relectantly gave my consent. I also obtained permission for Mr. Arthur Ruhl of Collier's and Mr. Henry West Saydam, of the Brooklyn Eagle, to accompany the and Berri had to have his lit-

After spending a week at Gallipoli, the party returned. The Turks had moved their military headquarters from Gallipoli and the English fleet, therefore, ceased to bembard it. All came back in good condition and were welcomed home with great enthusiasm.

More Adventures of the Foreign Rest-

The Gallipoli deportation gives some idea of my difficulties in attempting to fulfill my duty as the representative of allied interests in the Ottoman empire. Yet, despite these occasional outbursts of hatred, in the main the Turkish officials themselves behaved me that Sir Edwin had just reached home.

Now and then the Turkish officials would retailate upon one of their enemy aliens, usually in reprisal for some littury, or fancied injury, inflicted on their own subjects in enemy countries. Such acts gave rise to many exciting episedes, some tragical, some farcical, all thoulinating in the light they shed upon Turkish character and upon Teuvente of the statement of the statement.

The next day Sir Edwin called at the embiassy to thank me for my efforts in his behalf. He told me that the German ambassador had also worked for his release. This latter statement somewhat surprised me, as I knew no one clise had had a chance to make a move, since everything transpired while I had been in Talgat's office. Half an hour afterward I met Wangenheim himself, he dropped in at Mrs. Morganthau's reception. I referred to the Pears case and asked him whether he had used any influence in obtaining his freedom. My question astonished him greatly. his freedom.

Returned.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Return of the property to Mrs. Lilly Busch, wife of Adolphus Busch, attermillionaire brewer of St. Louis, which was taken over by the alien property custodian under the alien property act, was ordered by Attorney-General Gregory. It is announced that Mrs. Busch has satisfied the department of Justice as to her American citizenship.

Declaring that she remained an American atthough residing in Germany for several years prior to last June, Mrs. Busch recently filed a petition for the return of her property, valued at several million dollars and consisting largely of brewerles in St. Louis and other cities, stocks and bonds and real estate in New York. The estate impresented one of the largest pieces of property seized by the government during the war and so far as officially sunbunced is the Gres to be turned hack.

The order issued by the attorney-general provides that all property belonging to Mrs. Busch taken over, of whatever description, snall be returned and property not actually seized, but which has been made the subject of a demand of the alten property custodian, shall be released from such a demand.

Banana Sauce Dessert.

Prepare this dessert in three ways, the foundation being the same. It is called "banana sauce."

No. 1—To one-half cup of granulated sugar add one and one-half cups of water. When boiling thicken with one beaping tablespoon of corn starch. When cold (just before serving) add the juice of a small lemon, two bananas diced very small and a few drops of pink fruit coloring (same as used for cake batter.) With a fork beat all thoroughly until smooth. It is then ready to serve.

No. 2—Use sugar, water and cornstarch as above. Instead of lemon juice add one-half of a small pineapple (put through the food chopper) and bananas as above. Coloring can be omitted, as this only adds to appearance, not to flavor.

No. 3—Add the yolk of one egg to sugar (same as other recipes); If too dry, add a few drops of water, beat thoroughly, then add one and one-half cups water; boil and thicken with cornstarch. When cold add lemon juice and fold lightly into sauce. If bananas are very ripe they are fine crushed and beaten with the white of egg. EDUCATIONAL MISSION Senator D. P.
